And if not a happy ending, that was a true joy, which may be enough to ask for, after all. "The Master said that such gifts or capacities, untrained, are not only wasted, but may be single heart." "Gully," he named himself after a pause, and she thought it was a name he had made up to call himself. It did not fit him. Nothing about him fit together, made a whole. Yet she felt no distrust of him. She was easy with him. He meant no harm to her. She thought there was kindness in him, the way he spoke of the animals. He would have a way with them, she thought. He was like an animal himself, a silent, damaged creature that needed protection but couldn't ask for it. breath smelled earthy. His light eyes gazed directly into Otter's eyes. She towered above him impossibly, fire breaking forth between them, a flare of red flame in the dusk air, a gleam of red-gold scales, of vast wings - then that was gone, and there was nothing there but the woman standing on the hill path and the tall man bowing down before her, bowing slowly down to earth, and lying on it. hand, she struck him away with a blow to the head that left him dizzy.
